Course Description:

This course surveys some of the central figures and ideas of classical Greek and Roman philosophy, with particular emphasis on Plato, Aristotle and the main Hellenistic schools. It is intended to provide students with a broad understanding of the ancient foundations of Western philosophical thought and acquaint them with the contributions of specific thinkers and schools. Topics to be considered include the aim and method of Socratic inquiry; Plato's epistemology, theory of Forms and defense of justice; Aristotle's natural philosophy and ethical theory; Stoic and Epicurean cosmology and ethics. All of the texts to be covered have profoundly influenced the development of Western thought, and many of them also constitute literature of the highest order.

Course Goals:

The expectation is that students will finish this class with an understanding of some of the central philosophical problems with which ancient philosophers wrestled, and will have an appreciation for the interest and continued relevance of those problems today. Ideally, students will see how central concepts and themes are passed on, develop, and grow throughout ancient philosophical history.

Required Texts:

Grube, G.M.A. (tr.) (2002). Plato: Five Dialogues (Indianapolis: Hackett)

Grube, G.M.A., et al. (trs.) (1992). Plato : Republic (Indianapolis: Hackett)

Irwin, T, and Fine, G. (trs.) (1995). Aristotle: Selections (Indianapolis: Hackett)

Required course materials :

No course materials are required beyond the required texts.

Attendance:

Attendance is mandatory for all course lectures.

Grading Policy:

Grading will be determined by a combination of class attendance and participation, tests at the beginning of some lectures (roughly 1 per week), and the results of your midterm and final exams.

Attendance and Participation	20%
Tests (Cumulative)	20%
Exam 1	30%
Exam 2	30%

Grading Scale:

A	100-96	C	75-72
A-	95-92	C-	71-68
B+	91-88	D+	67-64
B	87-84	D	63-60
B-	83-80	D-	59-56
C+	79-76

Class Rules:

Students are expected to come to lectures having read the material assigned for the day, and to be prepared to engage in active discussion about that material. Philosophy is an inherently dialogical enterprise; we only progress in philosophy through active exchange of ideas and arguments. Computers may be used ONLY for taking notes. Cell phones must be turned off in class.
