A. COURSE DESCRIPTION

An introduction to the behavior of individual decision makers, particularly consumers and firms, who must make choices under conditions of economic scarcity. The course focuses on how markets work to allocate resources, how households maximize their satisfaction from consumer opportunities subject to an income constraint, and how firms organize production and measure costs in order to maximize profits. Related topics include comparative advantage and trade, competition and monopoly, government regulation, and labor markets. Concepts are discussed using common language and mathematical relationships with a strong focus on practical applications.

B. COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of the semester you should have a basic grasp of economic principles that you can apply in your personal and professional life. This course should also enable you to better understand current events and help provide a framework for subsequent finance courses. Target skills to be acquired include these:

1. Understanding the principles of economics
2. Ability to apply the concepts of elasticity and supply and demand
3. Understanding of public sector and firm behaviors

C. PREREQUISITES

D. REQUIRED TEXTBOOK

Modern Principles: Microeconomics, 4th edition, Cowen & Tabarrok, Macmillan Learning
(Note that you may use the 3rd edition of this textbook.)

E. TEACHING METHODOLOGY

The course will be entirely conducted through Blackboard. For each covered topic, you should read the related chapter, watch the accompanying lecture videos, and complete the self-check quiz. Your understanding of these materials will be assessed according to your performance on eight homework assignments, three exams, and a research paper. I encourage you to communicate with me throughout the semester. Any questions that you have on course materials, course administration, or assignments should be posted the discussion board. In addition to the

F. GRADING

Course grades will be determined as follows:

Exam 1:	20%
Exam 2:	20%
Exam 3:	20%
Research paper:	20%
Homework assignments:	20%

Exams

Exams can consist of multiple choice and short-answer questions. I will let you know the exact format of each exam as it approaches. Exams are not cumulative per se but there will be concepts learned in class that serve as a foundation for future topics. You can use your textbook and class notes on the exams. However, you are not permitted to collaborate in any way with other students. Students with similar exam answers will be considered to have cheated and receive a 0.

Homework Assignments

These assignments are intended to ensure that you read and practice the material in the chapter and serve as good preparation for the exams. Grades for each assignment are based on completion and correctness, and the single lowest assignment grade gets dropped. You are free to discuss with other students the contents of assignments, and I encourage you to reach out to me for help as you work through them. The assignments and instructions will be provided on Blackboard.

Research Paper

The research paper assignment requires you to choose an economic issue that interests you and to research that issue. You will need to present both sides of the issue and to give your policy recommendation based on your findings. Instructions for the research paper will be posted on Blackboard.

Grades for the entire course will be determined as follows:

A: 93 – 100	B -: 80 – 82	D +: 67 – 69

G. COURSE EXPECTATIONS

For our accreditation, it is essential that all Framingham State University credit courses follow the Federal Definition of credit hour: for every one hour of classroom or direct faculty instruction, a minimum of two hours of out-of-class student work is required. Since the summer courses meet for two contact hours daily (10 contact hours of classroom time weekly), the expectation is that students spend 20 hours per week doing out-of-class work. For the five week 4-credit course, this reflects 50 hours of classroom time and 100 hours of out-of-class time since the credit hour is defined as 50 minutes.

Framingham

State University
